Lesson 2: The 3 “Man Magnet” Photos You Must Have

By Michael Fiore and Digital Romance, Inc.

Like I said before . . .

Like I said before . . .

- Your profile is the “High Budget Movie Trailer” for what it’s like to date you . . .
- Men are VISUAL (and yes, shallow.) The picture is ALWAYS the first thing he’s going to notice (just like your smile, your eyes or your absolutely amazing ass is what he notices in the real world.)
- No matter what your profile SAYS, your photos are going to be what establishes his first impression (and first “fantasy”) of who you are.

Photo Rules . . .

- You want “Pro looking” photos. Doesn’t mean you have to pay someone, but no grainy shots taken in a bar on your iPhone.

- No skin. No alcohol or drugs. No middle fingers.

- Dress for your body. No “Walmart Pants.” No “Mom Jeans.” Men are visual so the shape and silhouette is incredibly important.

- Yes, there are creeps on the Internet.

- Do NOT put a picture of your house, mention exactly where you work or anything else that some stalker could use to steal your identity and be in a terrible Melissa McCarthy movie. (Seriously, Identity Thief was AWFUL.)

How Many Photos Should You Have On Your Photo?

How Many Photos Should You Have On Your Photo?

At least 3 and no more than 6.
A little goes a long way. This isn't Facebook. =-)

The 3 Photos You Must Have In Your Profile

Photo 1: The Full Body (or 3/4 body) Shot

- If a guy can't see you from the neck down in your profile he's going to assume the worst (tentacles.)

- If a guy can't see you from the neck down in your profile he's going to assume the worst (tentacles.)
- Men are attracted to all sorts of female bodies (not just cover models.) The key is to have confidence and to OWN what you have and who you are.

How to Pose in your Full Body Shot . . .

Cool and Confident . . .

Strong Smile.

Crossed arms shows relaxation but not vulnerability.

Hands on Hips ...

Not showing off,
but not ashamed of who you are.

Casual.

Open to having fun.

This type of eye
contact is attractive without being “Sexy.”

The “Over The Shoulder”

Says “Chase Me.”

A bit more “flirty”
which can be good or bad.

Good to at least try this pose.

Quick Note on Angles . . .

- High angles (looking down at you) make you look “submissive” (or like you’re in the X-Files.)
- Low angles (looking up) make you look powerful but frightening like a giantess.
- Straight on angles make you look like an equal (which should be what you’re looking for.)

Your assignment . . .

- Get a friend with a camera (no selfies) to take your 3 shots.
- HAVE FUN with the photo shoot. It’s a game.
- See the worksheet for step-by-step advice on how to get your photos together.
